Abstract

The aim of this project work is to understand different iterative methods to solve the nonlinear equations and their convergence and convergence speed. We also study how high order convergent methods can be constructed. Furthermore, we apply iterative methods to eigenvalue problems of a type of matrices, and systems of linear equations and computation of matrix inverse.